

Inherent Requirements Statement

UTS strongly supports the right of all people who wish to undertake a course at our university to pursue their goals and achieve their personal potential. We welcome prospective students with disabilities, and students from diverse social, economic and cultural backgrounds.

Inherent Requirements are academic and non-academic requirements that are inherent in or essential to the successful completion of a course. By identifying and effectively communicating the Inherent Requirements of our courses, UTS aims to assist prospective and current students to make informed decisions about their study, and to facilitate productive and transparent discussions about career choices.

What does this mean for prospective and current students?

Prospective and current students should carefully read this Inherent Requirements Statement and consider whether they might experience challenges in successfully completing their preferred or chosen course. This Statement should be read in conjunction with the <a href="https://linear.org/linear.o

If you are a prospective or current student and are concerned about your ability to meet these Inherent Requirements, you should discuss your concerns with the Academic Liaison Officer in your faculty or school and/or UTS Accessibility Service on 9514 1177 or at accessibility@uts.edu.au.

Please note that UTS also requires students to comply with the UTS Student Charter and relevant University policies, procedures, and regulations.

In addition, students who enrol in professional degrees are required to comply with legal requirements relating to accreditation and registration.

Reasonable adjustments

UTS will make reasonable adjustments to teaching and learning, assessment, professional experiences, course related work experience and other course activities to facilitate maximum participation by students with disabilities, carers' responsibilities, and religious or cultural obligations in their courses.

When making adjustments for students, UTS will continue to ensure the integrity of its courses and assessment requirements and processes, so that the students on whom it confers an award can present themselves as having the appropriate knowledge, experience and expertise implicit in the holding of that award. The purpose of reasonable adjustments is to assist, where feasible, students to meet the Inherent Requirements of a course, not to replace or override them. Sometimes reasonable adjustments will not enable the student to meet the inherent requirements.

Registration with the UTS Accessibility Service is necessary for students to obtain reasonable adjustments for their disability. An Accessibility Consultant can advise students about relevant policies and rules, focusing on what they need to know and when. Students are not otherwise required to disclose their disability or other personal circumstances to UTS, unless they pose a risk to their health or safety, or to that of others. Students should familiarise themselves with relevant deadlines and allow sufficient time for reasonable adjustments to be made.

Requirement area	Explanation and reasons	Support and resources
1. Legal and policy requirements	As a UTS student in the Bachelor of Global Studies, Bachelor of Sustainability and Environment, and the Bachelor of Criminology, there are a number of legal, regulatory and policy requirements that you are expected to observe. These requirements include your obligations: • Under the Workplace Health and Safety and Antidiscrimination laws to ensure your own as well as others' health and safety. • To be aware of, and comply with, a range of UTS policies and rules including those related to: • Academic integrity and ethical academic practice • Appropriate use of information technology • Code of conduct • Health guidelines related to specific situations; for example, COVID • To be aware of and comply with relevant policies and rules when undertaking study – for example, field trips and internships – outside the UTS campus.	You will be alerted to key requirements through course information and orientation sessions. The opening page of the UTS Handbook provides information about university rules and policies. Other subject specific requirements will be explained to you by your subject coordinator and teacher. If you undertake study that is hosted by an external organization, you must be pro-active to ask relevant external staff for any specific policies or rules you need to observe in their organisation.
2. Scholarly approach to new knowledge	During your study, you will be introduced to new knowledge and ideas. As a UTS student, you are expected to develop and apply a scholarly approach to engaging with knowledge and ideas. You are expected to • read and draw on information and ideas from English language academic texts in the field you are studying.	You are expected to learn about contesting theories within your discipline. There are both widely accepted and discipline-specific academic practices in which you will engage during your study. Many of the practices specific to your discipline will be made explicit by your lecturers and tutors within the subjects you study.

Requirement area	Explanation and reasons	Support and resources
	 produce written texts in English language that follow academic conventions. make presentations in English language based on scholarly information. participate in discussions, deploying English language, with colleagues and your teachers to build knowledge. 	UTS provides extensive support and resources to help you develop the more generic academic practices through services such as UTS HELPS and the Library. You are encouraged to actively seek their support when you need to or when your teachers encourage you to do so.
3. Professional conduct and communication in the University	You should be able to work effectively with people from diverse social and cultural backgrounds, including learners with a disability and learners from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander backgrounds. You should be able to undertake required learning, assessment and professional tasks. UTS provides you with a rich environment for learning. In your classes, expectations placed on you include: • Attendance at class sessions on time and having completed any pre-work. • Active participation in the class activities. • Cooperative and respectful engagement with your peers in group learning activities. • Willingness to learn from others, and share your knowledge, skills and experience with others. • Giving and receiving constructive feedback to, and from, your peers and teachers. The UTS community includes a large number of staff who provide a range of services to support your learning experience. You are expected at all times to:	The way classes are conducted may be different from subject to subject, and in some cases, may be quite unfamiliar to you or some of your peers. You can always seek clarification from your teachers if you are unsure of, or are in any way uncomfortable about, how you are expected to participate in class. You are entitled to a safe learning environment. If at any point you do not feel safe, you must seek help promptly from your teachers, or if that is not possible, from the Student Services Unit.

Requirement area	Explanation and reasons	Support and resources
	 Interact with all staff respectfully. Respond to requests for information and/or action promptly.
4. Professional conduct and communication in off-campus community, organizational and workplace settings	 During your course, you may participate in field trips, do a work placement, or visit and interact with community and industry practitioners. You must conduct yourself in a manner that upholds the reputation of the University. For example, you are expected to Communicate with members of the community or external organisation at the off-campus activity in a respectful and timely manner. Treat the external stakeholders with respect, sensitivity and empathy. Show willingness to learn from experience and feedback. Demonstrate sensitivity to, and respect of, the culture and practices of the community and workplace settings. Manage pressures from your personal life (including assignment due dates from your UTS course, work commitments) to avoid interference with the demands of your off-campus activity. Seek clarification or raise any problems related to your responsibilities in the off-campus activity in a timely manner. 	You will be provided with comprehensive guidance on what you can expect in your off-campus activity. Your teaching staff also have a responsibility to support you at the off-campus activity. There may be occasions when you are unsure or uncomfortable about your experiences in the off-campus activity. If it is not appropriate to discuss this with your tutor, contact your subject coordinator or the program coordinator, with whom you can discuss your concerns and work out a solution.

